Transition project

We are now working on the art project which will mark the next phase of our transition.

Reza Ben Gajra was in school last week working with children in all year groups to discuss and experiment with their ideas.

Reza worked with our school last year on the 'Jumping for Joy' project which is displayed in the courtyard between Gabriel House and the new build.

We have not yet agreed the final form for the new project, but will keep you updated!

Some of the early ideas include the use of a butterfly to link the buildings, a jigsaw of sculptures which can be moved between buildings, a pathway or steps between the buildings or a textured painting which incorporates a number of different ideas.

All of Julian's children will have the opportunity to work on the project which will take place in June and July this year.
